Royal Couple Surprised at Loan Dance

A freshman and a sophomore were king and queen of the Sophomore Loan Fund Ball Monday evening.

Eddie Wells, Glendale, Calif., and Karen Leishman, Provo, were the lucky numbers that won the royal titles for the annual sophomore dance.

Wells and Miss Leishman were notified of their luck just half-hour before the dance began.

This year is the first time that the lottery for this affair has been determined by a drawing. In previous years a queen has been elected by studentbody vote.

To be eligible for the royal titles this year, students had to purchase a ticket for the Eddie Wells was presented with a set of cuff links and Miss Leishman received a bouquet of roses as coronation gifts. They were crowned during intermission at the dance. Both the queen and king were gifted with parchment scrolls recording their evening's reign.

Harry Brooks, Phoenix, Ariz., plays a serious play the same evening.

A condemned man, played by Benberg, Los Angeles, Calif., plays his identity from his sister, played by Marische Crouse, Park Springs, Colo., even when she confronts him. He takes secret with him to his death. Ann Tolson, Charlotte, North Carolina, is cast in the role of a priest; Lynn Eager, Colton, Mo., is a priest; and Don Dew, St. Louis, Missouri, is the

IOC Justice Proposals Promised for Monday

NAMES OF proposed Inter-Organization Council Court Justices will be presented to the IOC for approval Monday evening, according to Mish Hollingworth, IOC president.

Names of justices were to have been presented to a special IOC meeting last Monday. The meeting was canceled because the list of names was not complete.

ANNOUNCEMENT was made later in the week that the names were to have been released Wednesday, again they were not ready.

Applicants have been under consideration for three weeks.

Selection of the justices is based on the background of applicants in IOC regulations, Brigham Young University procedures and political and legal methods.

ACCORDING to Rodney Fye, IOC executive assistant, delays in naming the new justices are due to recent re-interpretations of the IOC Court rules and procedures.

A new court system was drawn up and approved late last spring quarter but the court has never existed, in reality. Fye said a small backlog of cases awaits the new court.

Utah Solon Speaks; Explains Function

"I believe Utah will have a greater turnout to the polls than any other state this year," declared Utah Attorney General E. R. Callister in Thursday's address to Brigham Young University's Young Republicans.

The state attorney explained to the group various offices and functions within the state administration. He also elaborated on the voting procedure conducted throughout Utah.

Callister expressed his admiration for a university that allows political campaigning upon its campus. "Our young people must be informed on governmental affairs," he told the young GOP's.

FASTEN SAFETY BELTS

Signs are still appearing on the horizon that Brigham Young University's football fortunes are being primed to soar.

Fluctuating public opinion hit a new high after Thursday's rout by the Kittens over the Utah State Agricultural College frosh.

This smashing victory by a BYU grid squad comes at that opportune time when people were just beginning to wonder if all the ballyhoo about Coach Harold Kopp and the "new look" pigskin machine was not just so much imaginative writing on the part of Daily Universe and—for awhile, at least—other intermountain sportsters.

Thursday's win is another demonstration of the construction work going in to making a solid, weatherproof structure that will stand up under the buffeting of the strongest Skyline hurricanes.

At the risk of being dressed down for a lack of originality, we feel it might again be stressed, and for good reason, that "wait until next year," and "in two years everybody better watch out," are again valid cries and not just empty phrases to cheer dispirited fans of a losing team.

A good look at the contrast between this year's Cougar varsity and the dispirited, lackluster squad of last year at this time is a good indication of the talent and drive of Coach Kopp and a look at the Freshman beef coming up to supplement the men he has now should be enough to show even the most skeptical that from now on BYU can slam that cellar door and lock it FROM THE OUTSIDE.

The Week in Review . . .

Revolts Strain Iron Curtain Rods

by James Lee

WASHINGTON (INS)—The roar of revolt against Soviet tyranny reverberated behind the Iron Curtain last week. Rebellious Hungarians and Poles defied Moscow's rigid rule.

Raging riots, first in Warsaw and then in Budapest, wrested top place in the news from the U. S. election campaign in which President Eisenhower and Democratic nominee Adlai Stevenson drove toward the Nov. 6 showdown.

In Poland, a new Communist regime headed by Wladyslaw Gomulka, once imprisoned as a "Titoist," strove to end the wild, anti-Russian rioting which turned the streets of Warsaw into bloody battlegrounds.

IN HUNGARY, the once-purged Imre Nagy took over as Stevenson, eager to capture New York state's great bloc of 45 electoral votes, spoke at enthusiastic rallies in Madison Square Garden.

Ike, in another bare knuckle counter-attack, charged in his Garden speech that Stevenson was declaring a "moratorium on common sense" in his proposals to halt H-bomb tests and seek an end to the draft.

The President said "there is no political campaign that justifies" such techniques.

The Democratic nominee assailed the Eisenhower administration's stewardship of foreign affairs. He described the U. S. policy in the Middle East as "blundering vacillation." He accused Secretary of State John Foster Dulles of "appeasements and provocations" in advance of Egypt's seizure of the Suez Canal.

STEVENSON intensified his argument with the President on H-bomb tests.

The Democratic candidate declared that Eisenhower's rejection of Soviet proposals in connection with halting the nuclear blasts "has once more enabled the Russians to present themselves as apostles of peace."

On the matter of the H-bomb, Eisenhower issued a special government report intended to refute Stevenson's contention that the tests could be suspended without endangering U. S. security.

The Chief Executive insisted that until foolproof international safeguards are achieved, the U. S. must have nuclear weapons powerful enough to "dissuade any other nation from the temptation of aggression."

THE PRESIDENT said that if the U. S. suspended work on the tests "we could find our present commanding lead in nuclear weapons erased or even reversed."

Stevenson won the support of the Federation of American Scientists for his proposal to seek a ban on further H-bomb tests.

The executive committee of the 2,100-member group declared "universal adherence to the ban could be determined without resorting to complete international inspection" because "a large nuclear explosion can be detected by long-range monitoring methods."

This was somewhat in conflict with the President's position. Eisenhower said it was impossible to have positive assurance of detection except in the case of "very large" weapons.

DURING THE WEEK, the president made it clear that he is determined to try to crack the "solid South" again this year, as he did in 1952.

He announced that he will make campaign speeches next week in Florida, Virginia and Texas, all of which he carried four years ago, but which the Democrats are claiming this time.

Ike will make airport speeches at Miami and Jacksonville, Fla., and at Richmond, Va., on Monday. On Wednesday he flies to Dallas, Tex., and also to Oklahoma City. He carried Oklahoma, a border state, in 1952, but the GOP presumably is dubious about prospects there this time.

NOW, THE POINT IS—Monroe McKay (2nd from right) points out to debate opponent Dick Smart the more noticeable defects in the Eisenhower Administration foreign aid program as "technical staffers" Dr. Richard Poll and Dr. Stewart Grow, Republican and Democrat respectively offer sage advice.

Airing of Ike's Foreign Policy Seen in Campus Politico Debate

BITTER political rivalry is expected to break into the open with a debate on President Eisenhower's foreign policy Monday.

Opponents on the gab-fest will be Studentbody President Monroe McKay, of strong Democratic leanings, and Dick Smart, of the Republican faith.

Question discussed will be "Resolved: That Eisenhower's Foreign Policy Has Damaged American Prestige Abroad and Increased the Probability of War."

McKay will open the debate as the first affirmative speaker.

SMART'S TASK will be to prove that Eisenhower's policy have not damaged the U. S. prestige and that chances of have not increased as a result of U. S. foreign policy actions.

When asked his opinion of opposition, Smart, in a synthetic manner, said that though "McKay is intellectually sound, (he) is at a great disadvantage because he's fighting for the wrong cause."

In remarking on Smart's sound, McKay said, "It's fortunate that a budding yman of Mr. Smart's at would take such an undefeatable position."

POLITICAL science professors Stewart Grow, a Democrat, and Richard Peo, a GOP, have served as tech advisers to the debaters.

Debate will be held at 7 Monday in 260 Smith Building under the direction of Dr. Riggs, sponsor of the International Relations Club.

No admission will be charged.

UNIVERSE PARTY TO

Daily Universe staff party will be held Monday evening. Business and editorial members will meet at Daily Universe office, 610 Main, for transportation to the party. Those who have a biles should bring them.

From The Tower

CALIFORNIA'S fair-haired son, United States Senate Majority Leader William F. Knowland came to Brigham Young University last week.

From the heights of the Tower it looks like the senator and BYU were equally unimpressed with each other.

An elaborate reception was planned to greet the senator and family at the Provo Airport. A half-hour before the plane was to land big cars and big people started arriving at the field. The place was over run with senators, congressmen, mayors, Republican committee members, Homecoming Queens, Young GOP's and Californians, and the press.

EVERYONE tried to impress everyone else. A GOP committeeman, who apparently was running the show, complained privately that he made a mistake in letting three student groups participate in the reception. "That's two too many," he said. "Now all the kids are fighting over who will do what."

The huge United Air Lines Convairliner "Bill Knowland Special" landed late and five people (plus crew) rattled down the gangplank. After the hellos and handshakes and picture taking was over, the senator's party and reception delegation was hurried to the Smith Fieldhouse via a car caravan through the streets of Provo.

THE FIELDHOUSE was loaded with dignitaries and other invited guests. It was a politician's field day, and a chance for the studentbody to get a look-see at nearly every big GOP political wheel in the state. There was one catch—most of the studentbody just didn't bother. It was probably the only time this year that latecomers could take their choice of the coveted green seats.

THE SENATOR read his prepared speech. It wasn't aimed at the audience to which he was speaking, and at times it was hard to follow. But if the students were bored, some of the administration appeared to be that way too. In fact, so did the Mrs. Knowland and her daughter, and even the senator.

It was a nice try, but maybe everyone is tired of campaigning. And maybe the studentbody was just tired of being polite.

Knute Rockne Coached Cats

Knute Rockne, famed coach of the Notre Dame Fighting Irish came to the BYU campus to conduct a summer coaches clinic. That was back in 1923.

The Rock, in his fifth year of coaching at the South Bend, Ind. school, spent three weeks on the Cougar campus instructing Utah football coaches in the intricacies of modern football.

In order to take advantage of the famed Rock's presence, Cougar football coach Alvin Twitchell requested that his men report for spring practice on June 8th.

Rockne remained at BYU for three weeks.

Freshman Club 'Rather Happy' Over First Win

by Jerry Cunningham

A BAND OF 48 exalted Brigham Young footballers — the likes of which have been at a premium in recent years—filled the air with singing and laughter as two bus loads carried them homeward after their 31-7 bombardment of Utah State's freshmen in Logan.

When the final gun signaled the end of the thorough drubbing, pandemonium burst loose among the Kittens and they grabbed their elated coach, Max Tolbert, and lofted him high on their shoulders, rushing him out of Romney Stadium.

A two-touchdown pre-game favorite, the beaten and battered Utah State Ramblers "rambled" dejectedly off the field, the recipient of a sound plastering that was even more severe than the 31-7 score would indicate.

Co-captains Wayne Chamberlain and Rex Reeve announced at the climax of the team's dinner that the squad's choice for "player of the game" honors unanimously went to Coach Tolbert.

Tolbert praised the fine play of backs Ron Startin, Joe McGinn, Keith Hubbs and Chamberlain, and he lauded the work of the linemen by saying "they didn't score a first-in-ten through out line!"

The Kitten forward wall of Gary Merrill, George Smith, John Kapele, Rex Reeve, George Kinder, Tom Freestone and Melvin Brown made the Aggie ground attack almost negligible.

Expressing supreme confidence in his players Coach Tolbert took the blame himself for the lone pass which netted the Ramblers their only touchdown.

"I had them concentrating so much on a series of special Aggie ground plays that they sneaked through on us with that pass," he confessed.

Startin completed 4 of 5 passes in the process of compiling nearly 450 total yards.

Flanker Picked As Top Lineman On Game Play

Big Ed Hunt, 190 pound, 5' 11" end from Snowflake, Ariz., receives the Daily Universe's nod as Lineman of the Week following his outstanding performance against Montana Oct. 20.

Hunt:

Hunt snagged a pass from quarterback Don Dixon for a forty yard scoring play that gave the Cougars their final touchdown of the game against the Grizzlies.

He also provided the key block in Johnny Wood's 60 yard scoring jaunt when Wood intercepted a Silverpiss pass.

According to the Cougar coaching staff, Hunt has developed into a sharp flankman, and is especially endowed with quick reflexes on defense.

Before entering Brigham Young University he played football for Eastern Arizona Junior College.

Ex-End Named Back Of Week

An end turned halfback is the Daily Universe's choice for Back of the Week on the strength of his play against Montana Oct. 20.

ball squad went down to a 33-7 defeat at the hands of a favored Utah State team Saturday.

Although the scoreboard showed the Cougars way down on the short end, those who were there saw the Cats put on a good offensive game that was dominated by passes.

Coach Harold Kopp had said that the BYU team would throw the ball, and throw it they did. The first time the Cougars got their hands on the pigskin they threw it, and they kept on throwing until the final gun.

Basketball Club Holds 'Stretch-In'

THE ANNUAL "stretch in" day for the Brigham Young University basketball team was held last week.

Head basketball coach Stan Watt's cagers were officially measured and their heights recorded for the coming season.

A few players chalked in at 6'-4" or better, but the team as a group was a little on the short side, and will no doubt be considered small when compared to some of the other basketball powers in the nation.

TALLEST MAN on this year's squad is Jack Anderson, Salt Lake City senior, who stands just slightly taller than 6'-6". Anderson is at present one of the leading candidates for the center post held down last year by Herschel Pedersen.

The players measuring 6'-4" or better included forwards John Benson, 6'-4", John Gustin, 6'-4", Gary Miles, 6'-4", Duane Hiatt, 6'-4", centers John Hornbeck, 6'-5", Russ Jones, 6'-5½", Roy Thacker, 6'-4", and Bob Ricks, 6'-5".

THE HEIGHTS recorded for the rest of the ball team were: Mel Wilkes, 6'-0", Duke Reid, 6'-0", Jack Cravens, 6'-2½", Doug Beck, 6'-2", Roland Anderson, 6'-0", Blaine Williams, 6'-1", Stan Collins, 6'-3", Bill Treu, 6'-2", Bobby Maines, 6'-1", Tom Steinke, 5'-10", Paul Kitchen, 6'-0".

Ralph Ashby, 5'-10", Jaron Norbert, 5'-11", Derald Evans, 6'-2", Buzz Norton, 6'-3½", Lynn Rowe, 6'-3", Harry Anderson 5'-11", Hal Jensen, 6'-3", Bud Peterson, 6'-0", and Gary Larson, 6'-0".

THIRTY-SEVEN times the Cats took to the air lanes, completing 18 tosses and having only three intercepted.

BYU completed nearly 50 percent of their passes, a very impressive fact, even more so when one realizes that most of them were made with a wet ball. It rained during most of the game.

The Cougars gained 239 yards on aeriels, while moving only 63 on the ground. Most of the 16 Cat first downs were made through the air, also.

Utah State played good ball, and a backfield combination like Hill and Whatcott at halfbacks, Prince at fullback and Winters at quarterback would be a hard one for anybody to stop, as many Utag opponents have discovered this year.

HOWEVER, on several occasions the BYU defenses rose to the challenge and succeeded in bottling up the flashy Aggie backs.

If the breaks ever went against the Cats they did at Logan.

Several times Cougar pass receivers were behind the Aggie defenses only to have the wind lift the ball just out of reach.

The first bad break of the game came early, when Utah State punted into BYU territory and the ball took a bad hop and bounced off the back of a BYU man trying to get out of the ball's way to let it roll dead. The Utags recovered.

THE SECOND came when a BYU man fumbled a kickoff after the Aggies made their first score. Utah State recovered on the BYU 22 yard line, and drove to another touchdown.

The bright spot for the BYU fans came in the fourth quarter when halfback Larry Regis intercepted a Utag pass on the BYU 34 yard line. Eleven plays later fullback Dick Hunt rammed over the goal line from the Aggie 2 yard line for the score.
